FOLKLORE FORUM

A PUBLICATION OF THE FOLKLORE STUDENTS AT INDIANA UNIVERSITY

Volume I Number 3

September 1968

OFFICE COPY

The editors of the FOLKLORE FORUM would like to remind our readers of the American Folklore Society meetings which will be held in Bloomington, Indiana on November 8, 9, and 10 of this year. We urge graduate students in folklore to attend these meetings. Since Bloomington is a university town, we hope to be able to find lodgings for students with little money who own their own sleeping bags and are willing to sleep on a living room floor. Those who are interested in such accommodations should notify the editors of the FORUM as soon as possible.

The FOLKLORE FORUM is in the process of expansion. We are planning new features, such as a book review section (which will make its appearance in our next issue), and we are contemplating special issues on particular problems. We are interested in adding editors to our staff from various universities who would be responsible for soliciting and editing articles from different folklore departments. We hope to appoint these editors at the AFS meetings; we, therefore, look forward to a sizable attendance of graduate students with whom to discuss our plans.
