

Contributors

Linda Kinsey Adams is a Ph.D. student at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University.

Jeffrey H. Cohen is a Ph.D. student in the Department of Anthropology at Indiana University.

Sean Galvin recently received his Ph.D. degree in folklore from the Folklore Institute, Indiana University.

Martha King holds a Ph.D. degree in Italian from the University of Wisconsin. She traveled to Sardinia to interview Dolores Turchi for her article.

Lawrence W. Levine is Margaret Byrne Professor of History at the University of California, Berkeley, and a MacArthur Prize Fellow. Among his previous books are Black Culture and Black Consciousness: Afro-American Folk Thought from Slavery to Freedom and his latest Highbrow/Lowbrow: The Emergence of Hierarchy in American Culture.

Michael F. Miller is a graduate student in American Studies at George Washington University. He received his B.S. in Industrial Management at Georgia Tech and has been involved in International Trade and Real Estate Development the past few years.

Johnson A.K. Njoku is a graduate student at the Folklore Institute of Indiana University.

Elliott Oring is professor of folklore and anthropology at California State University and was one of the original founders of Folklore Forum in 1968.

Kenneth D. Pimple is a Ph.D. candidate at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University.

Deborah G. Plant received her B.A. in Fine Arts from Southern University in Baton Rouge, her M.A. in French from Atlanta University, and her Ph.D. in Afro-American Literature and Literary Criticism from University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She is currently

Assistant Professor of Afro-American and American Literature at Memphis State University.

Danny Rochman has an M.A. in folklore from the Folklore Institute of Indiana University.

Barbara Truesdell is a Ph.D. candidate at the Folklore Institute of Indiana University and is a former co-editor of Folklore Forum.

Lisa Philips Valentine is a graduate student in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Texas at Austin and will be joining the faculty of the Department of Anthropology at the University of Western Ontario in London, Ontario, in the fall of 1989.

Robert E. Walls is a Ph.D. student at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University. He was co-editor of Folklore Forum in 1986.

Jongsung Yang is a doctoral student in Ethnomusicology and Folklore at Indiana University. A native of Korea, he is an associate instructor of World Folk Music at the Folklore Institute of Indiana University. He received an M.A. degree in Folklore and Ethnomusicology at IU.