

Contributors

Linda Kinsey Adams is a Ph.D. candidate at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University. She is currently researching her dissertation on Mexican American folklore.

Christine Condaris received a Ph.D. in ethnomusicology from Wesleyan University (Middletown, Connecticut). Presently, she is an associate professor and chair of the music department at North Adams State College, Maine.

Shannon Docherty is a Ph.D. candidate at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University. She is currently working on her dissertation in Chicago and teaching a course on Native American art at Northwestern University.

Jean R. Freedman is a Ph.D. candidate in Folklore and Ethnomusicology at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University. She is currently engaged in dissertation fieldwork on culture and politics in wartime London.

Joseph Hellweg is a graduate student in the Anthropology Department at the University of Virginia.

J.O.J. Nwachukwu-Agbada is a novelist and poet, as well as a lecturer at Abia State University in Uturu, Nigeria. He has published several articles on proverbs.

Lael Weissman is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Pennsylvania. Currently, she is studying Native American shamanism in the Pacific Northwest.