

Contributors

Ross Peterson-Veatch is a Ph.D. candidate in Folklore at Indiana University. His research interests include sixteenth-century Spanish American History as it relates to the beginnings of ethnographic science and the effects of nineteenth-century social science on public policy.

Morris S. Levy is a Ph.D. candidate in Folklore at Indiana University. His research interests include several forms of American music, including country, rhythm and blues, and Southern gospel, and he owns over one hundred Elvis Presley albums.