THE BATTLE OF FOLKLORE AND FAKELORE

Attack

A Treasury of Mississippi River Folklore, in Minnesota History 35 (March 1956): 39-41.

of Duncan Emrich, Folklore on the American Land, in Western Folklore 32 (1973): 141-43.

Reply

See New York Folklore Quarterly 7 (Spring 1951), "Upstate, Downstate," by B. A. Botkin, 78-79.

Thompson, under headings (2) and (3).

Magarac," 252.

Folklore Newsletter, Folklore Students Association (Indiana University) 2: 18 (August 1, 1973): 5-6.

Retrospect

New Battle

TERMINOLOGY

Laurits Bødker, Folk Literature (Germanic) (Copenhagen, 1965).

BIBLIOGRAPHY - I

Major Aids, Guides, and Reference Works

---

Merle E. Simmons, A Bibliography of the Romance and Related Forms in Spanish America (Bloomington, Indiana, 1963).

Out-of-Print Books from the John G. White Folklore Collection at the Cleveland Public Library (Cleveland: Bell and Howell Co., 1966).

ARCHIVING

"Archiving Folklore" in Four Symposia on Folklore, ed. Stith Thompson (Bloomington, Indiana, 1953), pp. 89-154.

INDEXES

Antti Aarne and Stith Thompson, The Types of the Folktales (Helsinki, 1961).

Ernest W. Baughman, Type and Motif Index of the Folktales of England and North America (Bloomington, Indiana, 1966).

Wolfram Eberhard and Pertev N. Boratav, Typen türkischer Volksmärchen (Wissbaden, 1953).

Terence L. Hansen, The Types of the Folktales in Cuba, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, and Spanish South America (Berkeley and Los Angeles, 1957).

Hiroko Ikeda, A Type and Motif Index of Japanese Folk-Literature (Helsinki, 1971).

Stith Thompson, Motif-Index of Folk-Literature, 6 vols. (Bloomington, Indiana 1955-58).
PRINTED SOURCES

George Lyman Kittredge, The Old Farmer and His Almanack (Cambridge, Mass., 1904).

James R. Masterson, Tall Tales of Arkansaw (Boston, 1943).

Vance Randolph, Ozark Folklore, A Bibliography (Bloomington, Indiana, 1972).

FOLKLORE IN LITERATURE

FOLKLORE AND ANTHROPOLOGY

FOLKLORE AND HISTORY - i

Folklore and History (continued)

Américo Paredes, "Folklore and History," in Singers and Storytellers, Publications of the Texas Folklore Society, No. 30 (Dallas, 1961), 56-68.

AESTHETICS OR ORAL STYLE

FOLKLIFE AND MATERIAL CULTURE

Folklife and Material Culture (continued)

Chapters by Glassie, Jenkins, Roberts, Yoder in Folklore and Folklife, an Introduction (Chicago, 1972).

HISTORY OF FOLKLORISTICS

Biographica: Nordic Folklorists of the Past (Copenhagen, 1971).

__________, Forewords to Folktales of the World series.

Jacob Grimm zur 100 Wiederkehr seines Todestages (Deutsches Jahrbuch für Volkskunde, 1963).

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS IN FOLKLORE

(Special issues of the Journal of the Folklore Institute)

Africa 4: 2/3 (June - December, 1967)

British Isles 2: 3 (December 1965)

Germany, Austria, Switzerland 5: 2/3 (August - December 1968)

Yugoslavia 3: 3 (December 1966)

Italy 11: 2/3 (August - December 1974)
International Relations in Folklore (continued)

(Proceedings of international congresses and Festschriften)

IV International Congress for Folk-Narrative Research in Athens (Athens, 1965).

International Kongress Der Volkserzählungsforscher in Kiel und Kopenhagen (Berlin, 1961).

Studies in Folklore in Honor of Distinguished Service Professor Stith Thompson, ed. W. E. Richmond (Bloomington, Indiana, 1957).

FOLKLORE IN THE MASS MEDIA

Life Treasury of American Folklore (New York, 1961).

"The factors mentioned as potential explanations for perceived changes in climate, such as greenhouse gas emissions, are not directly linked to the observed changes in weather patterns.
However, there is a growing consensus among scientists that human activities, particularly the burning of fossil fuels, contribute to these changes.

Our research team has been investigating the impact of human activities on climate change. In our latest study, we found a significant correlation between increased greenhouse gas emissions and shifts in regional weather patterns. This suggests that the observed changes in climate are, in part, a result of human actions."

New data on climate change continues to accumulate, providing further evidence for the importance of reducing our carbon footprint. The implications are clear: we must take immediate action to mitigate the effects of climate change and ensure a sustainable future."
This proseminar is designed to introduce beginning graduate students in the Folklore Department to the fields, genres, and theories of folklore, the tools and technical terminology used in contemporary folklore scholarship, the methods of folklore research in the society, library, archives, museums, and mass media, the relation of folklore to other disciplines, and the expressive nature of folklore data. Based on the conviction that learning through active participation is more effective, the members of the proseminar are assigned eight papers on eight relevant topics during the semester. Also, the members of the proseminar are expected to report the gist of some of their papers to the class, and to take part in discussing the issues raised in the class. Grades for the course are based on the papers that the students write and the contributions that they make to the class discussions.

Fall 1979, Lecture Topics

Aug. 28. Objectives and strategies of the course, discussion of the terms folklore, fakelore, folklife, Volkskunde, Volkerkunde, ethnography, and ethology in historical and conceptual plans.

Sept. 4. Fields and genres of folklore, professional skills of folklorists.

Sept. 11. Introduction to Finnish Method, concepts of type and motif, comparison of motif with function as introduced by V. Propp, eitic and emic structural units used by Dundes, concepts of automigration, selfcorrection, ur-form, and oicotype.

Introduction to the Indianist School of Folklore.

Sept. 18. Introduction to Levi-Strauss' linguistic model to structuralism: concepts of binary opposition, mediation, surface and deep structure.

Introduction to the Formulàic Theory of Folklore.

Sept. 25. Introduction to Celestial Mythological and Psychoanalytical schools of folklore, comparison of the two schools' symbolism.

Oct. 2. Introduction to functionalism, contextualism, and orientation to performance.

Oct. 9. The rationale and the inherent problems of genre studies in folklore. Introduction to folk narratives, and narrative folksongs.

Oct. 16. Introduction to recreation and games, folk religion, folk medicine.

Oct. 23. Introduction to performing arts: folk music, folk dance, and folk theatre.

Oct. 30. Introduction to folk arts, crafts, and architecture.

Nov. 6. Folklore and related disciplines: folklore and literature, folklore and history, folklore and anthropology, folklore and psychology.

Nov. 13 Folklore and related discipline continued.
F516: Proseminar, Folklore Theories and Techniques

Fall 1979 Assignments

Richard M. Dorson

Report 1. Folklore and Fakelore: Write an evaluative report of one volume in the Folktales of the World Series. Sept. 17

Report 2. Fieldwork: Collect three jokes, and give informant data and analysis of meaning of each text. Comment on the usefulness of MacDonald's chapter in Folklore and Folklife for your collecting. Sept. 24

Report 3. Terminology: Write a report on the definitions and uses of one folklore term discussed in Folklore and Folklife. Oct. 8

Report 4. Bibliography: Prepare a classified list of ten items on one folklore topic, following the model of the chapter bibliographies in Folklore and Folklife. Oct. 22

Report 5. Library: Write a report on holdings on folklore rather than the university library, e.g. on Lilly Library, Music Library, Education Library, Business School Library, Monroe County Library. Oct. 29

Report 6. Archiving: Write a report on holdings in 1) the Folklore Archives, 2) the Archives of Traditional Music. Refer to List's three chapters in Folklore and Folklife. Nov. 5

Report 7. Folklore and Material Culture: Describe one folk artifact in the Museum of Anthropology, Folklore, and History in terms of its craftsmanship and functions. Consult the chapters by Roberts, Glassie, and Jenkins in Folklore and Folklife. Nov. 12

Report 8. Indexing: Trace the type and motif references of one tale in your Folktales of the World volume in an extended note. Refer to Degh's chapter in Folklore and Folklife. Nov. 25

Report 9. Folklore in the Mass Media. Cull six or more folklore items from the mass media and explain their use and appeal. Dec. 3
ACADEMIC WRITING: SOME PERSONAL TESTS

by Richard M. Dorson

1. Do you reread your paper? How many times?
2. Do you have peers read and criticize it?
3. Do you rewrite it substantially?
4. Do you use "this" without a noun?
5. Do you use the passive voice without a subject?
6. Do you use "in that"?
7. Do you write every day?
8. Do you read poetry? Literature? Philosophy?
9. Do you read scholarly articles/books for style as well as content?
10. Do you choose topic sentences for each paragraph?
11. Do you introduce personal statements, judgments, anecdotes?
12. Do you read intellectual magazines/reviews? Which? (e.g. New York Review of Books, New Republic, Commentary)
13. Do you make an outline before you write?
14. Have you read the Great Team?
15. Do you judge oral folklore aesthetically?
16. Do you use excessive academic jargon?
17. Do you use anthropological style?
18. Do you consult dictionaries? the O.E.D.?
19. Do you think of your book/article as a dramatic tale?
20. Do you begin sentences with "however"?
21. Do you end sentences with weak words, e.g. prepositions?
22. Do you overuse texts and quotations?
23. Do you lead in grammatically to indented quotations?
24. Do you end sentences with participial clauses?
25. Do you weigh the balance, the feel, the rhythm of sentences?
26. Do you enjoy expressing ideas with the greatest possible clarity?
27. Do your pronouns refer to the immediately preceding noun?
28. Do you use etc., and/or?
29. Do you think of making your writings readable?
30. Do you have ideas about what constitutes readability?
31. Do you believe that to be readable is to be unscholarly?