Congratulations on having your title accepted for coverage by Scopus.

This letter serves as the official welcome for Journal of Education in Muslim Societies and confirms that the title has met the criteria to be accepted into Scopus, Elsevier's expertly curated abstract & citation database.

Researchers at over 5000 institutions trust the information and data they discover with Scopus because the stringent curation policies help to protect the integrity of the scholarly record. By accepting your title for coverage, the independent Scopus Content Selection and Advisory Board has determined that your title meets Scopus's high standards; and we feel sure you will appreciate that continued coverage of your title in Elsevier products does depend upon your continued adherence to that commitment.

Your sincerely,

The benefit of discoverability

Being included in our databases means your title will get:

- Increased visibility at over 5000 of the world's top research institutions
- A better understanding of how your articles fit into the citation landscape

How we use your content

We require access to the full-text of your publication for indexing purposes only (e.g. to capture keywords, affiliations and references, etc). We never provide the full text to our users or other third parties. We always link users back to your online platform to access the full text or view purchasing information, our coverage can therefore contribute to an increase in user traffic to your own platform.

Content coverage policy

Elsevier products have adopted formal content selection criteria and coverage by these products confirms that your publication is committed to meeting the highest possible publishing standards. Future coverage will be based on your continued commitment and adherence to those standards.
