

The Night that Sang

Fallon, Kaden, Lucy, Phoenix, and Wade

Pre-reading questions:

- Do you like to watch the sunrise or the sunset?
- Is nighttime or daytime better?

The sun comes up, and the children play.

When the sun goes down, they rest in bed until it is day. The moon comes up and down they lie, until the sun comes back for another time.

The children lie in bed awake. They cannot sleep, so they shiver and shake. The cold night goes on under the moon, and so they hope the warm sun comes back soon.

The moons sings them a lullaby. The children do not fuss or cry. The children start to fall asleep. They do not even make a peep.

The sun awakes and starts to rise.

The children open their sleepy eyes. It is now time to wake up and play, for it is another day.

Lucy, Wade, Phoenix, Fallon, and Kaden are fifth- and sixth-grade students from The Project School in Bloomington, Indiana.
