

Brough, Stover, Denney, Lee, Uppinghouse, Buskirk, Hubbard, Craven, Morris, Clark, Hattabaugh, Dewalt, Logan, Baker, Strain, Vance, Hobbs, Huston, Short, and Young are some of the names. These were nearly all southerners, their average height was about six feet, their weight about 250 and their strength remarkable. The tallest man in the Union army according to the story was one of this group, Capt. David V. Buskirk, 82½ inches in stocking feet. It is an interesting story far out of the ordinary.

THE Twenty-Second Biennial Report of the Kansas State Historical Society covers the transactions of the society for 1919 and 1920.

J. L. HEINEMAN, of Connersville, has issued an 8-page pamphlet entitled An Itineracy, Historic Connersville, commemorative of the visit of the Indiana Pioneer association to that city, June 16, 1921.

Fort Wayne in 1790. Indiana Historical Society Publications, Vol. 7, No. 7. By M. M. QUAIFE, Indianapolis, 1921, pp. 295-361.

This is a reprint of the Journal of Henry Hay from the Proceedings of the Wisconsin Historical Society, 1914. In the proceedings it bears title "A Narrative of Life on the Old Frontier." The diarist left Detroit December 9, 1789, and the journal ends abruptly Saturday, April 3, 1790. The winter of 1789-90 was spent at the trading post of Fort Wayne, then called Miamitown. It is well edited and forms a valuable document.

Centennial Memorial Volume of Indiana University, 1820-1920, pp. 345. Bloomington, 1921.

This volume is made up of two parts; the first consisting of six lectures delivered by Judge David D. Banta, on successive Foundation days from 1889-1894. These have previously been published in the Indiana Alumni Quarterly, beginning with the first issue of the magazine, January, 1914. The second part is an account of the series of addresses delivered at the Centennial Educational conference, held at Indiana university, May 5-7, 1920, including the address delivered by
