

Papers of Thomas Riley Marshall Desired

John E. Brown, graduate student in history at Ball State University, is doing research on the vice presidential years through the close of life of Woodrow Wilson's vice president (1913-1921) and governor of Indiana (1909-1913). Letters, documents, or any other information on Marshall's public and private life are requested. Address all correspondence to John E. Brown, Department of History, Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana 47306.

Papers of William Hendricks Desired

Frederick D. Hill, professor of history at Indiana Central College, is writing his doctoral dissertation on the entire political career of William Hendricks, United States congressman from Indiana (1816-1822), governor of Indiana (1822-1825), and United States senator (1825-1837). Letters, documents, diaries, or any other information on Hendricks' public and private life are requested. Address all correspondence to Frederick D. Hill, Department of History, Indiana Central College, Indianapolis, Indiana 46227.