

of American Archivists, National Archives and Records Service, and De Paul University. A registration fee of $5.00 will be charged for lunch and program expenses. The morning session will consist of two papers on the ethnic studies resources deposited in the National Archives in Washington, D.C., and on the documentation available in the Chicago Federal Archives and Records Center. In the afternoon a panel of several representatives from institutions in the north central states will describe their holdings and facilities and comment on the use researchers have made of them. Ample time will be provided for questions and discussion. The closing remarks will be directed to the topic "Ethnic Studies: Where Are We? Where Are We Going?" For a copy of the printed program call 312 353-1123 or write to the Federal Archives and Records Center, 7201 South Leamington Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60638.

Earlham College Old English May Day

On May 19, 1973, Earlham College, a Quaker coeducational institution located in Richmond, Indiana, will hold its quadrennial Old English May Day. Before an anticipated crowd of 8,000 people some 1,500 costumed students, faculty, and staff members with their families will present an afternoon of Elizabethan plays, madrigals, English country dancing, and delightful antics by jesters, tumblers, chimney sweeps, and many other sixteenth century characters. Reserve tickets are available by mail before April 30 at $5.00 per seat. General admission prices are: adults, $3.50; students, $1.75; children under twelve, $.75. For free flyer or reserved seat tickets write May Day Office, Box 13, Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana 47374.
