Account Book of Francis Bosseron

Edited by JANET P. SHAW

Foreword

The Bosseron Account Book, printed below in the original French and in translation, owes its importance to the fact that it was kept by Francis Bosseron, a pioneer merchant and the Mayor of Vincennes, at intervals during the period from September, 1777, until January, 1782, while the forces of the British and Americans were struggling for possession of the town. It is the longest manuscript in the so-called Lasselle Collection of business and family papers, newspaper files, etc., belonging to the Lasselle and Bosseron families in pioneer times, which were gathered together by the late Charles Bosseron Lasselle, a grandson of Mayor Bosseron. The Collection was acquired by the Indiana State Library in 1908.

The chief value of the old Account Book lies naturally in the first-hand information it furnishes of conditions in Vincennes when the town was captured by the Americans, and the proofs it affords of the valuable assistance given to George Rogers Clark by Mayor Bosseron, timely and necessary aid that has never been generally recognized.

It is a very human document for it possesses the unique interest of revealing, often from day to day, the purposes and occupations of various people who are at present in the lime-light of history. With the help of a very little imagination, the student of the entries may see Captain Helm arriving in the town with almost no money and not long after, September 25th, beginning to requisition supplies for the garrison and comforts of various kinds for himself from the hospitable Mayor. All through the fall he is shown making friends with the neighboring tribes of Indians—with “Tobacco and his band”, “the chief of the Pians”, “the Loup chief”, “the Ouyatanons”, “the Outasias”, “the Souteux”, “the Coux savages”, etc.—doubtless preparing the way for Colonel Clark to make treaties when he was free to leave the Illinois country.

In the same record may be found the facts in regard to the purchase of the historic flag of Vincennes and its maker, Madame Goderre, the "Betsey Ross of the West". It is shown here to have been a red and green pennant [pavillon] or company banner, presumably prepared for the volunteer company of which Mayor Bosseron was captain.

On December 17th, 1778, the day when the British army was reported to be "not three miles distant", the dauntless American obtained from his friend Bosseron, 241 pounds of beef and 150 pounds of powder, apparently in a last desperate effort to hold the fort against Hamilton and his army of Indians and Red Coats.

The Account Book is also of interest for the insight it gives into French pioneer book-keeping. All accounts are naturally recorded in French livres, sous [or sols], and deniers. The sign of the livre resembles a ditto mark. Spanish piastres and American dollars are also current coins and have the same value [five livres.] Individual accounts are usually labelled as due in pelts or livres, 12 livres in pelts being equal to 10 in specie in some of the business transactions recorded in Bosseron's various papers.

The text of the manuscript is reproduced here with as much accuracy as possible. The original is a thin ledger-shaped pamphlet, consisting of perhaps thirty pages, sewed together by hand and provided with a cover of brown wrapping paper. It is not possible to indicate the faded ink, the careless penmanship, the illegible and scratched out entries, the worn pages, etc. Capitals are scattered about with little regard for rule or uniformity. The spelling is, in many places, confusingly phonetic and often varies from line to line in other ways. However, in spite of all these confusing conditions, the book is surprisingly clear as a whole, and Bosseron shows himself to have been in many ways, a man of ability and one of much better education than most of the people of the time.

The account book contains five records which are all more or less distinct:

1. Bosseron's Day Book from March 9th, 1779, to the following July. This was a time of unusual prosperity in the village as a result of the payment of salaries and other bills by the British officers before their departure as prisoners of war. A statement of the division of the stores captured with the boats intended for Hamilton, etc. (First fourteen pages of the Account Book.)

2. A memorandum of bills of exchange accepted by Bosseron from the Americans in return for supplies, loans, services to the army, etc. (Fifteenth page.)

3. One page of the British account—evidently incomplete. (Sixteenth page.)

4. The personal account of Captain Helm. (Seventeenth and eighteenth pages.)

5. An itemized bill for supplies furnished Helm for the volunteer garrison of the Fort from September 25th, 1778, until the coming of the British on December 17th. (Nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-first pages.)

² The date, March 9, indicates that this part of the Account Book deals with the period immediately following the departure of the English when bills of various kinds had been settled with the townspeople. The cargoes of the British boats captured by the Americans, were also divided among the soldiers and Creoles and add'd to the unusual prosperity. The first fourteen pages of the Account Book evidently served as Bosseron's day book. The records in the back of the book are tabulations copied from some notes. These are not printed as a part of the Account Book.

⁵ The abbreviation s stands for sou, of which 20 made a livre; e.g., 12" 10*s* = 12 livres and 10 sous.

⁶ J. M. P. Legras is frequently mentioned in histories of the period for his services to Clark. He was appointed Military Commander of the fort and became one of the first judges of the Illinois county under Governor Todd.

[Miss Shaw has been long interested in the services of Francis Bosseron to the American cause in the West during the Revolutionary War. She has labored with the papers in the Lasselle collection in the Indiana State Library for the past two years, and now presents the Account Book in the original French and in translation, believing that all who are interested in the history of the Old Northwest will gather from the document the importance of the aid extended to Clark by Bosseron.—Editor]

² 1 pre Soulier aho, a homme, "1 pair of men's shoes." See also below soulier a fe, "women's shoes," and soulier a gracon, "boy's shoes." These entries are confusing in the original MSS. as the abbreviations are little more than signs in Bosseron's hurried script.

⁴ The purchase of pocket knives by Captain Helm is amusingly frequent. It is probable that he found them a convenient medium of exchange.

⁵ The names of more than one hundred and fifty individuals, groups, tribes of Indians, courreurs des bois, etc., are mentioned in the pages of the Account Book. It is probable that Bosseron had also numerous "cash" customers. It must be remembered, however, that the average pioneer household was almost self-supporting and only luxuries and manufactured goods which were imported from Detroit, were purchased.

¹⁰ Bosséron designates the men who joined the British while they were in Vincennes, as "volunteers."

¹¹ Adhemar St. Martin was Bosseron's agent (or partner) in Detroit, to whom he sent the furs he collected in Vincennes and received in exchange the manufactured articles listed in the Account Book. There are several letters from St. Martin in the Lasselle collection giving in detail the contents of the packages in certain consignments, the prices he paid for the articles in Detroit and occasionally those paid in France. Most of the items in the Account Book seem to have a standard price.

¹³This page of the Account Book is out of place, chronologically. It belongs after the British account on the sixteenth page as the last date there is February 5th. Many of the items also concern the business transacted for the British army or with the French volunteers. A list of these volunteers may be found in W. H. English, Conquest of the Northwest Territory, Appendix.

¹⁴This is a good sample of Bosseron's banking methods. Money paid or received is recorded like other commodities.

¹⁵Chorette and Germain Clement are perhaps two of the courreurs des bois whose trips are charged against the British in the account on the sixteenth page for January 28th.

¹⁴ Notice the luxurious cap and embroidered coat.¹⁵ Nippolite Baulon was an Indian interpreter.¹⁶ The price which Bosseron charged for powder was low compared with that in other places and was probably one reason that the possession of the western posts was important to the United States. He charges from 5 to 8 livres ($1 to $1.60) a pound. Clark paid $2 a pound in Kaskaskia (English, History of the Northwest Territory). Oliver Pollock purchased ten thousand pounds for $18,000 in New Orleans in April, 1776, for the use of the Colonial Army. See James, George Rogers Clark, p. 93.

²³ This account apparently concerns the spring consignment of furs to Detroit.

²³ "Majord Boman" probably refers to the American, Major Bowman. He is not mentioned elsewhere in the Account. He probably needed a new cap and purchased a fox pelt to make one.

²⁵ It is not clear whether the word Brûlere is the name of a person or is intended for Brûloir, (a roaster,) or some other word.

²⁰ Notice the spelling of Sergent Grine (Green).²¹ Canady is evidently phonetic spelling for Kennedy. Bosseron seldom spells the name twice alike. Cf. pathrique Kanady, eleventh page. Patrick Kennedy was General Clark's quartermaster.²² The entry gros ahe appears several times with various spellings. It is evidently phonetic spelling for gros hache, a big hatchet; i.e., an axe.

^{ss} La Sosiete, the society, or company, is frequently found in the business letters in the Lasselle collection. There was evidently some kind of a partnership, or business agreement, existing among the fur traders in various posts and their agents in Detroit.

^{ss} Payé a dite ferante parson is evidently phonetic. The writing is not clear. It may mean, "paid to different persons."

^{ss} Shaved skins, or tanned leather, had a standard value as a medium of exchange.

^{ss} There is a receipt in the Indiana State Library signed by Louis Nalette which may be the one recorded here, but the lack of a date for this entry makes identification impossible. This is true in regard to several entries. Toile d Rusy, Russian cloth, seems to have been much used but no description of it has been found.

⁷⁷ This memorandum lists six of the letters of exchange owed to Mayor Bosseron in January, 1782. Evidently incomplete as the total amount due on these vouchers is $10,936, less than half of the five thousand twenty-four pounds, ten shillings, six pence, allowed to him by the Virginia commissioners. See record copied in sketch of Bosseron's life, above.

⁷⁹ This entry seems to be the "certified account numbered 5" which was returned to Bosseron by the Virginia commissioners in 1783. See record copied in sketch of Bos-

[MEMORANDUM OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE
OWED TO BOSSERON]

[Fifteenth page]

Memorandum of Letters of Exchange which concern the disbanded company at St Vincennes, to January, 1782, for the settlement with General Clark.

An account by one Rien Canday, dated the 27th of October, 1780 in Illinois, for the sum of six thousand five hundred nine livres, of which the sum of five hundred ten livres are for me.

A bill of exchange, No. 161, for the sum of 2863 $\frac{3}{4}$ piastres, dated the 18th of September, 1779, signed Wm Shannon.

Another, No. 155, for 3803 $\frac{3}{4}$ piastres, [signed by Shannon] dated the 12th of August, 1779.

Another, No 153, for 400 piastres, dated August 12, 1779.

Another, No 166, dated October 10th, 1779, to M Capt Helm, 1500 piastres, signed [by] Shannon.

Another made in Illinois by Capt Helm, dated November 19th, 1779, for 1067 piastres upon the Treasury of Virginia, signed [by] Helm and endorsed by him.

eron's life, above. It is also almost certainly the account for the supplies provided Captain Helm for the garrison in the fall of 1778.

⁴⁰This account is evidently incomplete as General Hamilton had held the fort for six weeks before the first entry. The right margin of the page is badly worn and most of the amounts charged are lacking. See the third page of the Account Book for other British accounts.

⁴¹Lessivé blé, corn treated with lye; i.e., hominy.

⁴²The spelling Baritte makes possible three meanings; barett, a smaller bar; barrette, a flat cap; barillet, a small barrel. The second meaning seems best.

⁴³The minot was the old measure of 39 litres, also a large quantity, a peck.

⁴⁴Mahis = maïs or maize [Indian corn].

⁴⁵ It is interesting to note the occupations of the British on February 5, the day that General Clark set out for Vincennes. The three pirogues were probably purchased for the purpose of searching for the lost ships with supplies which the British expected.

⁴⁶ This is the personal account of Captain Helm. It is not included in that sent to General Clark for the expenses of the garrison.

	3 jugs taffias	60
March 28	Paid for his part of one case ² of taffias	20

Case seems the correct translation for Bte., in this instance, Bte. could hardly be meant for bouteille, as a bottle of taffias sold for ten livres. Bte. is here probably an abbreviation for boite.

En L'autre Part L 1682

"This account was made out in duplicate by Bosseron in the Account Book. As the two records are almost identical, it has not seemed necessary to print both. The form given here is that of the second bill as the spelling seems somewhat clearer in places.

⁵⁰ The meaning of mitasse is not clear. It is possibly the phonetic spelling for mitrailles. The French Dictionary by Clifton, Grimeaux, & McLaughlin derives this word from mitaille, O.F. From mite, meaning a small coin. Mitasse seems more likely to be a contraction of demi tasse.

⁵¹ Vinde is colloquial for vin doux, sweet wine.

⁵³ The items listed on November 12th are of general interest as they give all the facts available concerning the red and green flag raised by Madam Goderre, which is often confused with the American flag raised over Fort Sackville by Father Gibault. It should be noticed that Bosseron calls this Le pavillon, the pennant, or company banner. A national flag is called a drapeau. It was probably not made until late in the fall as it was not paid for until November.

⁵³ It is interesting to notice the number of items recorded in this account from which it is evident that Captain Helm was making efforts to win the Indians around Vincennes to the American cause. There are twenty different entries of this nature.

⁵⁴ Bosseron provided over three thousand pounds of beef for the garrison of the fort during the period when held by American troops in 1778, and in many cases had to pay cash for it.

^{ss} The value of a piastre is shown to be five livres or one dollar, since 40 piastres are given as equivalent to 200 livres.

^{ss} It seems almost certain that this account of Bosseron's is the one numbered No. 5 in the Proceedings of the Virginia House of Delegates and that "Bill of Exchange No. 9" is the order upon General Clark mentioned here. There are two discrepancies. The date given here is January 14, 1779, and that given in the discussion of Bill of Exchange No. 9 is November 19, 1779. The amounts differ somewhat also. Bill of Exchange No. 9 is for 1067 dollars; the amount due here is 5710 livres and five sous, or $942.05. On the other hand, this is the only certified account of which we know Bosseron sent to the Virginia House of Delegates. It is certain that no money was available for paying Clark's bills in 1779. It is quite probable that Bosseron was called on to provide additional supplies for the garrison during 1779, and that these were added to the earlier account.
