It is our great pleasure to give you Undergraduate Research Journal 2011, the result of the combined effort of 22 authors and an exceptional editorial team lead by Rebecca Gibson and comprised of gifted and detail oriented individuals. The staff of 2011's Undergraduate Research Journal would like to thank the Student Government Association and the Publications Board for giving us the opportunity to create this journal. We would also like to convey our thanks to Dr. Peter Bushnell, our faculty advisor; Sam Centellas, IUSB's director of Student Life and tireless supporter of student work; Deb Richards, purchasing guru and font of information; and the staff at Service Printers for all of their wonderful support and expertise. We would like to thank each student who took the time to submit their work to this publication. Without your hard work and creativity our efforts would be superfluous. Heartfelt thanks and sincere appreciation go to Timothy Dann-Barrick, Chloe Lawrence, Steve Richards, Hannah Stowe, Jeff Tatay, and Jenn Zellers for help with the selection and editing process. And finally, we would like to offer our gratitude to the countless professors who let us interrupt their classes to solicit submissions from their students and the faculty members who encouraged students to submit their work to our humble publication. Undergraduate Research Journal is an annual publication created by IU South Bend students, for IU South Bend students.
