

PREFACE

The Editors

We would like to thank the editor of Olifant, Michael Harney, for enthusiastically supporting the idea of an issue of the journal specifically dedicated to the romance epic in Italy. The project began as a series of sessions on Italian romance epic under the aegis both of the Société Rencesvals and the American Association of Italian Studies (AAIS) at meetings of the International Congress of Medieval Studies in Kalamazoo (1992-1997) and at the 1995 AAIS conference in Tempe, Arizona. We also thank those who submitted articles and those who refereed submissions, who constitute our editorial board for the issue.

The study of romance epic in Italy has a lengthy history. Scholars who have contributed research include Gaston Paris (1865,1905), Pio Rajna (1873,1874,1875,1926, etc.), Paul Meyer (1904), Joseph Bédier (1908-1913, 1914-21), Antonio Viscardi (1941), Aurelio Roncaglia (1965, 1974, 1987), Carla Cremonesi (1966, 1969,1973,1977, etc.), Rita Lejeune and Jacques Stiennon (1967), Henning Krauss (1970,1980,1982, etc.), Lorenzo Renzi (1970, 1976) , Cesare Segre (1970, 1989, etc.), Gunter Holtus (1977, 1979, 1985, 1986, 1989, etc.), Aldo Rosellini (1977, 1980, 1984, 1986, etc.), Peter Wunderli (1982), among many others. A selected list of their contributions is appended to this preface.

Several lines of inquiry inform critical studies of the Italian romance epic tradition, similar to those which invest the study of the romance epic in general: genre definition; history and its relationship to literature; analysis of textual language; identification of sources and influences; comparison with other texts; and production of meaning. Essays in this volume touch upon these and other areas of investigation in texts authored in the Italian peninsula, dating from the fourteenth through the sixteenth centuries.

The first two articles here offer new analyses of aspects of the Entrée d'Espagne (EE). Leslie C. Brook examines form and content to propose that the EE conforms more closely to traditional definitions of epic modelled on the Chanson de Roland than to paradigms of medieval romance. While recognizing genre as a modern concept, Brook presents textual evidence (notably that the text begins and ends in an epic world) and a series of arguments to support his thesis: treatment of themes; character presentation and development; narrative structure. Although Brook acknowledges several episodes which can be interpreted according to modalities characteristic of romance literature, he does not find them fully integrated into the global epic ethos of the EE.

In "'Non par orgueil, mais por senefiance': Roland Redefined in the Entrée d'Espagne" Sara Sturm-Maddox focuses on the function and meaning of the "transitional segment" which conjoins the two principal divisions of the text: Roland in Spain and in the Near East. While Roland is literally in transit himself after a series of confrontations with Charlemagne, a chance encounter with two "pagans" provokes him to an act of murderous violence. As he and the narrator reflect on the relationship of this act to what the text calls Roland's "nature," i.e., those aspects of his conduct and discourse suggesting orgueil and desmesure, a second encounter generates further reflexion on the uses and abuses of Christian chivalry. It is in this portion of the text that Sturm-Maddox situates the turning point of Roland's heroic career.

Gloria Allaire's essay on the prose Storia di Aiolfo dal Barbicone approaches this early fifteenth-century text as an important example of hybridization of Carolingian epic and Arthurian romance. Although Andrea da Barberino may have had access to mediating north Italian versions of the French Aiol, he has modified his source(s) in order to conform to mentalités prevalent in post-plague Republican Florence. Identifying the principal socio-political contexts within which Andrea was working, Allaire attributes the Aiolfo author's emphasis on family and kinship to his desire to reach a contemporary audience / readership whose concerns center on issues of lineage, loyalty, alliances, obligations, and conflicts.

Olifant

Three early fifteenth-century epics contributing to the formation of a new masculine ideal in Italian epic are analyzed and compared here by Juliann Vitullo. The heroes of these enfances epics are as adept in language as in chivalric skills; rhetorical prowess in particular renders them more accessible to the mentalité of the mercantile and administrative classes of late medieval Italy. Andrea da Barberino's Guerrino il Meschino and Raffaele da Verona's Aquilon de Bavière valorize reason and order as essential to the new Christian knight; a series of binary polarities posits "Oriental pagans" as self-indulgent, disordered, and sexually deviant. Vitullo contends that these polarized literary depictions correspond to social commentary by, for example, San Bernardino. In turn, the Amazonian protagonist of Ms. Mediceo Palatine 101 defends heterosexuality and marriage as fundamental to ideal masculinity, reflecting similar prescriptions in contemporary Florence.

With the final essay, we arrive at the canonical figure of Boiardo. Daniela Boccassini examines Roland's actions and character development within the Orlando Innamorato (OI) in an effort to assess how Orlando conducts himself in circumstances where emotion and cognition may be placing different demands on him. Boccassini asks whether Orlando does indeed become both "dotto e saggio," i.e., whether he attains knowledge of self and the world through his textual journey. In a close reading of his trials, Boccassini concludes that Orlando learns very little, if anything at all, from his numerous experiences and encounters; he appears capable of learning from immediate situations and within the confines of a particular episode, but unable to project and apply that knowledge in different circumstances. Boccassini suggests that Boiardo's knights are reflected, disenchanted images of the court in Boiardo's time, whose interests centered on amusement and diversion.

The articles contained in this volume represent some of the diversity of research currently being done in an important field of medieval literature. It is to be hoped that other scholars will draw inspiration from them so that future issues of Olifant can be dedicated to the romance epic texts of other countries.

Selected Bibliography

- Bédier, Joseph. Les légendes épiques: Recherches sur la formation des chansons de geste. 4 vols. Paris: Champion, 1908-1913.
- . Les légendes épiques: Recherches sur la formation des chansons de geste. 4 vols. Paris: Champion, 1914-1921.
- Cremonesi, Carla. "A proposito del Codice marciano fr. XIII." Mélanges offerts à Rita Lejeune, Prof, à l'Université de Liège. Gembloux: J. Duculot, 1969. 2: 747-55.
- , ed. Berta e Milon, Rolandin: Codice Marciano XIII. Milano: La Goliardica, 1973.
- , ed. Berte da li pè grandi: Codice marciano XIII. Milano: Varese, 1966.
- , ed. Le Danois Oger. Enfances - Chevalerie. Codice Marciano XIII. Milano: Cisalpino-Goliardica, 1977.
- Holtus, Günter. "Approches méthodiques d'une description linguistique du franco-italien." Festschrift für Kurt Baldinger zum 60. Geburtstag. Ed. Henri Vernay Manfred Höfler, Lothar Wolf. Tübingen: Niemeyer, 1979. 854-75.
- . "L'influsso del francese sull'italiano settentrionale antico." Elementi stranieri nei dialetti italiani. Atti del XIV Convegno del CSDI (Ivrea 17-19 ottobre 1984). Pisa: Pacini, 1986. 1-19.
- . "Ist das Franko-italienische eine Sprache oder eine Dialekte?" Retirage zum romanischen Mittelalter. Sonderband zum 100 jährigen Bestehen, Zeitschrift für romanische Philologie. Ed. Kurt Baldinger. Tübingen: Niemeyer, 1977. 79-97.

. "Lessico franco-italiano = lessico francese e/o lessico italiano." Medioevo romanzo 10 (1985): 249-56.

—. "Nochmals zur Characteristik des Franko-Italienischen und franko-italienischer Texte." Variatio linguarum: Beiträge zu Sprachvergleich und Sprachentwicklung. Festschrift zum 60. Geburtstag von Gustav Ineichen. Ed. Karl-Herman Körner und Wolf Thümmel Ursula Klenk. Stuttgart: Steiner, 1989. 103-14.

Krauss, Henning. "Analyse sociologique du Ms. Venise 13." Essor et fortune de la chanson de geste dans l'Europe et l'Orient latin. Actes du IXe Congrès de la Société Rencesvals. Modena: Mucchi, 1982. 2: 789-90.

—. Epica feudale e pubblico borghese. Per la storia poetica di Carlo Magno in Italia. Trans. F. Brugnolo, A. Fassò and M. Mancini. Padova: Liviana, 1980.

—. "Ezzelino da Romano - Maximo Çude. Historische Realität und epischen Strukturzwang in der franko-italienischen Chevalerie Ogier." Cultura neolatina 30 (1970): 233-49.

Lejeune, Rita and Jacques Stiennon. La Légende de Roland dans l'art du Moyen Age. Bruxelles: Arcade, 1967.

Meyer, Paul. "De l'expansion de la langue française en Italie pendant le Moyen Age." Atti del Congresso Internazionale di scienze storiche. Volume 4: Atti della sessione III: Storia della letteratura. Roma, aprile 1-9, 1903. Rome: Salviucci, 1904. 61-104.

Paris, Gaston. Histoire poétique de Charlemagne. Paris: Librairie Bouillon, 1865, 1905.

—. Histoire poétique de Charlemagne. 1905. Genève: Slatkine Reprints, 1974.

Rajna, Pio. Geste Francor. Milano: Bestetti e Tuminelli, 1926.

—. "Ricordi di codici francesi posseduti dagli Estensi nel secolo XV." Romania 2 (1873): 49-58.

- . "Uggeri il danese nella letteratura romanzesca degl'Italiani." Romania 2, 3, 4 (1873,1874,1875): 153-69; 31-77; 198-436.
- Renzi, Lorenzo. "Il francese come lingua letteraria e il franco-lombardo. L'epica carolingia nel Veneto." Storia della cultura veneta. Vicenza: Neri Pozzi, 1976.1: 563-89.
- . "Per la lingua dell'Entrée d'Espagne." Cultura neolatina 30 (1970): 59-87.
- Roncaglia, Aurelio. "La letteratura franco-italiana." Il Trecento. Storia della letteratura italiana, v. 2. Ed. E. Cecchi e N. Sapegno. Milano: Garzanti, 1987. 745-82.
- . "Nascita e sviluppo della narrativa cavalleresca nella Francia medievale." Convegno Internazionale Ludovico Ariosto, Roma, Lucca, Castelnuovo di Garfagnana, Reggio Emilia, Ferrara (27 settembre - 5 ottobre 1974). Roma: Accademia nazionale dei Lincei, 1974. 229-52.
- . "Temi ed aspetti della letteratura franco-veneta." Il Quattrocento e l'Ariosto. Storia della letteratura italiana, v. 3. Ed. E. Cecchi and N. Sapegno. Milano: Garzanti, 1965. 727-59.
- Rosellini, Aldo. "Il cosi-detto franco-veneto: Retrospettive e prospettive." Filologia moderna 2, 4 (1977,1980): 219-303; 221-61.
- , ed. La Geste Francor di Venezia. Edizione integrale del Codice XIII del Fondo francese della Marciana. Saggi e monografie, 6. Pubblicazioni del centro di linguistica dell'Università cattolica. Brescia: La Scuola, 1986.
- . "Iterazione sinonimica nel cod XIII del fondo francese della Marciana." Diacronia, sincronia e cultura: Saggi in onore di L. Heilmann. Brescia. 1984. 421-37.
- Segre, Cesare. "Errori di assonanza e rimaneaggiamenti di copertura nel codice O della Chanson de Roland." Un augurio a Raffaele Mattioli. Florence: Sansoni, 1970. 465-77.

—, and Carlo Beretta. "Il codice V4 della Chanson de Roland." In Testi, cotesti e contesti del franco-italiano. Atti del 10 simposio franco-italiano (Bad Homburg, 13-16 aprile, 1987). Ed. Henning Krauss, Günter Holtus and Peter Wunderli. Tübingen: Niemeyer, 1989.128-42.

Viscardi, Antonio. Letteratura franco-italiana. Ed. Giulio Bertoni. Istituto di filologia romanza della R. Università di Roma. Testi e manuali, 21. Modena: Società tipografica modenese, 1941.

Wunderli, Peter. Raffaele da Verona. Aquilon de Bavière. Roman franco-italien en prose (1379-1407). 2 Vols. Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für romanische Philologie 188, 189. Tübingen: Max Niemeyer Verlag, 1982.

Olifant 21.1-2