Contents

Editor’s Note

Essays

Keynote Addresses

Peter Kornicki
Keeping Knowledge Secret in Edo-Period Japan: 1600–1868 3

Roger Chartier
Genealogies of the Study of Material Texts: The French Trajectory 20

Theoretical Case-Study: Paul Eggert’s
The Work and the Reader in Literary Studies

Matt Cohen
The Becoming of the Scholarly Editor: Reading Paul Eggert’s
The Work and the Reader in Literary Studies 26

Ian Cornelius
Take this Work Global 39

Alan Galey
The Work and the Listener 50

Paul Eggert
A Wandering Hyphen, The Reader and the Work:
Round Table on The Work and the Reader in Literary Studies 65
Textual Studies: century by century
Beatrice Arduini and Jelena Todorović
Biscioni’s Dante 85

Jonathan P. Lamb
What Books Taste Like: Bacon and the Borders of the Book 97

Diego Perotti
Is There a Printer’s Copy of Gian Giorgio Trissino’s Sophonisba? 106

Jolie Braun
“There is no respectable woman . . . that sells books!”: The Memoirs of Nineteenth-Century Women Book Canvassers 124

Eleanor Dumbill
Fiction, Non-Fiction, and Family Writing: Investigating the Boundaries of Literary Genre 140

Karen L. Schiff
Books at the Borders of Picasso’s Les Demoiselles d’Avignon 147

Lauren Frey
Marianne Moore’s Ghost Revisions: Poems (1921), Observations (1924, 1925), and Selected Poems (1935) 174

María Julia Rossi
Of Epicene Particles and Other Misleading Tricks: Gender Ambiguity in Silvina Ocampo’s “Carta perdida en un cajón” 189

Santiago Vidales Martínez
A Trip Through the Mind Jail: A Textual History of raúlrsalinas’ Magnum Opus 208

John K. Young
Characters as Works and Versions 230

Gabrielle Dean
Genius Trouble 242
Notes & Rejoinders
Michael Gavin
EEBO and Us 270

Anglo-American Reviews

Oz Frankel 279

Edward Larkin 283

Samantha Pinto 287

Glyn White 291

John K. Young 295

Continental Reviews

Daniel E. O’Sullivan 299

Notes on Contributors 303

The Society for Textual Scholarship 309